OHIO ARCHITECTURE COURSE BEGINS

DEVELOPMENT OF OHIO ARCHITECTURE is the title of a lecture to be given by Nancy Coe at The Cleveland Museum of Art on Sunday October 7 at 3:45 p.m. This talk, open free to the public, is the first of a series of six illustrated lectures on important Ohio architecture.

In her Museum talks Miss Coe will survey Ohio's most outstanding architecture from 1800 to the present day. Although the course will emphasize Federal and Greek revival periods, significant examples of contemporary architecture will also be included in the discussion.

For several years Miss Coe has made a special study of Ohio architecture and has traveled throughout the Western Reserve as well as the areas around Columbus, Cincinnati and Marietta. On these frequent excursions she has studied the interiors and made numerous color slides of important Ohio homes and other buildings.

A native Clevelander, Miss Coe was graduated from Hathaway Brown School and Skidmore College. She received her M.A. in Fine Arts from Oberlin College in 1955. After an extensive tour of Europe in 1952 and 1953 Miss Coe taught at Saint Timothy's School in Stevenson, Maryland.

The opening Sunday lecture is open free to the public. Subsequent meetings are open to Museum members and will be held on Wednesday afternoons from 3:00 - 4:30 p.m. beginning October 10. Registrations for the Wednesday meetings will be received by the Museum's Department of Education, GA 1-7340.
